

Guest Editor's Desk

Prof. Dhanraj T. Dhangar,

President, International Research Fellows Association

Asst. Prof. Marathi,

M. S. G. College, Malegaon Camp,

Nashik [M.S.] India.

Dear Readers,

Hellow & welcome on the webportal of Research Journey Multidisciplinary International E-Research Journal. I am happy to inform you that the journey which was started before one year is to be continuining. We have completed first step of this endless journey. Now you are reading 'Research Journey's 1st Issue of the 2nd vollume. Seven different articles have been included in this issue.

In the first article, Dr. K. N. Patil & Prof. Dipak baviskar have jointly presented their research on 'Terrorist organizations in Bangladesh and its impact on Indians internal security'. They have defined the two types of terrorism in India i.e. External and Internal. "External terrorism emerges from neighbouring countries and internal terrorism emulates from religious or communal violence and Naxalite–Maoist insurgency." In the 2nd article Dr. U. G. Tayade has presented his research on most famous Indian English writer Manoj das. Dr. Tayade's research is based on the following hypothesis – "Manoj Das's literary works which are basically set in rural villages not only depict the community life as a whole but the nature as a significant force. His works show his observation of nature. Nature plays crucial role sometimes in the stories of Das." I think the said researcher has successfully criticized the short stories of Manoj Das. The next one paper is also based on the literary works of Manoj Das. This paper is written by Prof. Narendra Tayade. This paper "principally deals with humanism in the selected works of Manoj Das. The paper discusses humanism in Indian context. It also highlights the theory of humanism. It is an attempt to find and bring in light the humanism in the works of Indian writer, though it was an approach in the renaissance period of Europe." In the next article Prof. A. G. Nerkar has focussed on the character of Principal Dr. M. Y. Vaidya. It is the part and parcel of his Ph. D. research. He has criticized the autobiography of Prin. Vaidya. Prof. Nerkar principally focussed on educational works of Dr. M. Y. Vaidya. In the next article eminent writer & researcher Mr. Ajij Tadavi has explained the life & culture of adivasi the aborigine community in India. In the next one article the said guest editor has presented his research on Co-relation between Medieval Marathi Poetry & Modern Lyrics in Marathi Cinema. In the last paper of this issue Dr. A. D. Goswami has explained the difficulties of banks in generate the scheme of Jan-Dhan by Government of India.

I tried to introduce articles which have been included in this issue. Now the issue is before you. So please you decide the quality and send your valuable comments to us. Our peer referees and hardworking editors have taken great effort and touched the content gently. The pattern and perspective is that of the respective authors alone, and they are responsible for the views and versions in their papers.

We are here, to make the 'Research Journey' the best among equals. Your academic cooperation and constructive valluable suggestion(s) - solicited.

Happy reading!

- Guest Editor